

GEORGE CUMBERLAND (1754 – 1848): WATERCOLORIST

George Cumberland (left) was a fairly proficient watercolorist. On the next page are two portraits of Cumberland both in middle age.

Following these are several watercolours by Cumberland that are good examples of his works. These are held by the Pierpont Morgan Library, New York.

The last two are illustrations from two of his published works.

What is Cumberland doing on the Man Family web site? His mother was Eliza Balchen whose sister Mary married John Man. He is thus the first cousin of Henry, John, and James Man of Generation Three.

Holland Park House, London

The Thames at Milbank, London

The Inn at Salisbury

An Illustration of Lewina, Maid of Snowdonia, a short story by Cumberland.